HERITAGE STATEMENT
21 CHURCH STREET, RIBCHESTER

AREA

From the late eighteenth century Ribchester became a local centre of handloom weaving. There had been linen weaving from at least the early seventeenth century, when specialist linen weavers were recorded. By the late eighteenth century, the domestic weavers had switched to cotton, and a large number of houses with loomshops had been built. Many of the houses in Church Street, opposite the White Bull Inn for example, had loomshops and date from the last quarter of the eighteenth century, though many were probably rebuilds of earlier houses.

Nos 16-22 Church Street had attic loomshops but there is little evidence for the use of cellar loomshops.

HISTORY OF BUILDING

The property is grade II listed forming part of a block booking of 6 properties. The property was once the village bank, during which period numerous changes are believed to have occurred to the property. In 2007 an extension was added to the rear of the property, like many of the adjacent properties. Consent was gained during 2010 to infill a redundant doorway.

OTHER PROPERTIES IN AREA

Neighbouring properties form part of the group grade II listing. Such properties have a mixture of wooden and UPVC frames along with both single and double glazing.

PROPOSAL

The intent is to replace a rotten timber window on the first floor rear of the property with another timber window of the same design but to use double glazing. The window to be installed will be of wooden construction with a single opening as is currently present and painted white. The window is to be double glazed to meet FENSA requirements and improve the environmental performance of the building.

The window, which is beyond repair is being replaced with a window of 'like for like' appearance and is therefore considered sympathetic to the character of the building.

IMPACT

With the exception of the double glazed glass, the window will visually be the same as the existing and will therefore not compromise the existing aesthetics of the building. Due to the height of the window, the double glazing will not be noticeable. Other properties within the group listing have been double glazed at the front and/or the rear and some of which have plastic /UPVC frames.

As the existing window is likely to be around 20 years old and is not original to the property and other properties have double glazing and upvc frames, the present of double glazed glass in a window at No.21 which will otherwise be visually the same as the existing is therefore not considered to detract to the character of the property.
