Hi Graeme,

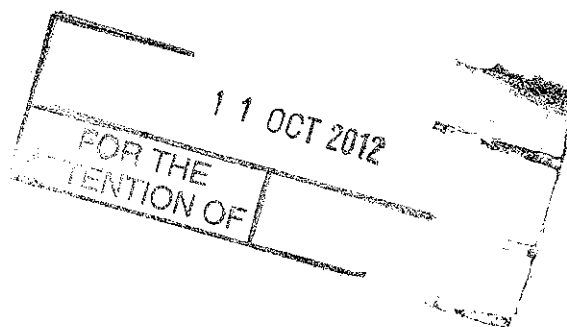

The HER records a well/spring on the southern edge of this field, Higher Paradise to its east and a second well to the south. The wells were recorded in 1853, and an assessment of a barn at Higher Paradise suggested a late 17th or early 18th century origin. I don't think that the proposed turbine will make any significant impact on the heritage value of these sites and, given the recent negative results from the assessment and watching brief at Pasture House Farm to the east, I don't think that the new turbine proposal merits any formal archaeological investigation.

Yours,
