Three of the trees are category A1 trees these are considered to be high quality and will require a tree protection condition, of the remaining trees 3 are category U trees which are not usually retained due to their condition however they are on neighbouring land so will also have to be included in the protection condition. The remaining tree is a category C1, a category that includes trees of low quality but with an estimated life expectancy of at least ten years so subject to the findings of the recommended climbing inspection should also be considered for retention.

Trust the above is helpful
