FAO Planning Dept

I have been informed by my neighbours that the family at the back of me have now put in planning permission to raise their fence at the back. They did come round to speak about what they were looking to do the day before the builder arrived to put the wooden poles up. They said they were just looking to put something up to attach some roses to - trellis. I had no idea that it was going to be so out of keeping with what is already quite high fence anyway and so high. The bit at the bottom of my garden was a lot higher than I believe they were allowed to have and also it was really quite unsightly – friends and family did say that it was really not on what they were doing before they had to remove the poles and apply for planning permission. I would like to object to these plans quite profusely and just wanted to make my feelings known.

With Kind Regards
