comments: Totally object to this planning application. The houses are sturdy and generously sized and fit for purpose. With slight refurbishment these houses can be brought back up to standard for modern family living without having huge environmental impacts on the local area. Including the short term impacts Of wagons and lorries coming in and out of the village adding to the congestion. And affecting the wild life and current biodiversity in the area. These houses should stay built and either resold or bought back by the council or community group for affordable rentals/resale that is highly needed in the area. Not. Typical new build houses of poor quality that do not have any sympathy towards the area. These houses are apart of whalley history including calderstones hospital and the former nurses that used to live there. They are a vital part of whalley heritage
