comments: My main concern is that I have been lead to believe, as this is a conservation area, I would not be allowed solar panels on my roof. It would be changing the view of the area. Yet in the same conservation area some one can take out a section of wall, lay a new section of road and construct a new dwelling. Moreover, said new road will mean people having to reverse out on to the existing road. Am I to believe certain parts of the conservation area have separate rules or do the rules differ depending upon the applicant.
